CASA BLEND

About the Region

The state of Minas Gerais' Sul de Minas region is well-known for its extensive coffee production, a custom that dates back generations and was initiated by immigrants, primarily Italians, who once recognized an opportunity in the industry.

About the coffee

Casa Blend is a distinguished specialty coffee blend from the Sul de Minas region of Brazil. The blend is crafted from beans cultivated by farmer members of a cooperative renowned for its dedication to quality.

The initiative is designed to support and sustain coffee growers within the network by ensuring the beans consistently meet the high standards required for specialty coffee.

SÍTIO SÃO JOSÉ

Marcos Vedovotto with his mother, Maria Aparecida, and his father, José Vedovotto are deeply committed to their coffee plantations, reflecting their passion and pride in every step of the process. As a family-owned farm, they prioritize the quality of their beans, dedicating themselves to producing exceptional specialty coffees.

SÍTIO COQUEIROS

Bianca represents the fifth generation of her family dedicated to coffee farming, continuing a rich tradition of expertise and passion. She focuses on specialty coffee production, overseeing quality management and handling negotiations to ensure the highest standards. The family's commitment to excellence extends beyond Sítio Coqueiral, as they also manage four other small farms in the surrounding region.

FAZENDA LAGEADO

Jânio Costa embarked on his coffee journey to honor his father's legacy, rooted in the coffee-rich area of Vargem Bonita. Their property, nestled on the slopes of Serra da Canastra, benefits from the highland conditions that are ideal for cultivating exceptional coffee. Jânio's wife, Nilza, shares his deep coffee heritage, having grown up in a family dedicated to coffee production. Today, the Costa family works together harmoniously, with their son Nathanael and daughter Tatiane actively involved.
